OLDER PEOPLE STAY YOUNGER THROUGH GARDENING ACTIVITY

Eighty-eight-year-old Ben Barr, Lancaster, Pa., who looks like a hale and hearty man of sixty years, says "working with plants" has kept him young. "Every time I see a beautiful shrub or tree that I have planted, flower in my garden, I figure it adds another year to my life," says Mr. Barr. "It certainly adds zest to living."

Mr. Barr is no different from millions of other elderly people who have found that gardening activities has kept up their interest and made them young for their years, according to the American Association of Nurserymen. "While gardening is a necessity for the young married couple in suburbia, for the elderly it represents a healthful, creative pastime recommended by medical authorities everywhere. In fact, numerically," says the association, "more elderly people garden than engage in any other activity."

Gardening with the elderly is far more than just "puttering around the property." For the first time in their lives many of them have the time to indulge their love for flowers and of creating a garden of which they can be proud. Rose gardens, camellia gardens, lilies and perennial gardens, fruits and other gardens are planted and maintained.

Most elderly people are impatient with small-sized shrubs and trees. They want them mature enough to flower the first season. But there is a minority who even will cross-pollinate different varieties to see what they will get in new bloom on the hybrid plants that are produced.

Elderly people have contributed much to the advancement of horticulture and it seems, though there are no known statistics to prove it, that people who are interested in growing plants, do live longer. "It may be that gardening," says the Association, "keeps up their interest and offers healthy outdoor exercise, without being too strenuous. Moreover, the activity can be carried on at home."

"Whatever the causes, elderly people who garden extensively seem to be far happier and more full of life than those who do not garden. And if the majority of the 16,000,000 elderly persons in the country garden, it must not only have fascination for them, but wholesome benefits as well."

GOLDEN WINGS HYBRIDIZING TRIUMPH

GOLDEN WINGS, new everblooming shrub rose

If awards are what you want Blossomtime will give them to you as it has to many, many others. This rose wins more awards in its class than any other variety and continues to do so year after year. If you just plain want a nice climber that will continue to bloom and bloom with greenhouse quality roses on your fence you can be sure of true award winning quality with Blossomtime. Read below what others say about this great rose and then turn to page 3 and put a check beside this rose.

BLOSSOMTIME, best everblooming climber

For years, rose hybridizers have been on a long search to find a climbing rose that was not only hardy in the colder areas of the United States, but one that would also be truly everblooming.

Just when it seemed to the hybridist that he had reached his goal and it had been announced that there was a climbing rose that bloomed all summer, Rosarians in their testing programs throughout the United States discovered that it was not satisfactory in some way.

At last we have the perfect everblooming climber. Blossomtime has proven, over a period of five years, that it answers all of the demands of our Rosarian friends in all parts of the country.

Blossomtime blooms from the earliest spring until the snow flies, bearing medium sized sweetly fragrant blooms of camellia pink of Hybrid Tea form. These blooms are either borne singly on stems of cutting length or in groups of three or five. One of our Rosarian friends has said that if she could have but one rose in her garden it would have to be Blossomtime because it is never without bloom. We feel that this is one of the highest tributes ever paid to this rose and we have yet to find our first dissatisfied customer. Blossomtime also makes a beautiful rose for fences both of the rustic type and on modern ranch-type fences.

Some of the comments received have been: Indianapolis, Ind.: "Lasting color, good shaped bloom, most everblooming rose ever seen." Kansas: "Very free blooming, lovely pink, fragrant." St. Louis: "Lovely two-tone flower, fine for corsages." Columbus, Ohio: "Very hardy, profuse everblooming climber."

All in all Blossomtime seems to be the pinnacle in climbing roses and it is the opinion of the writer that no rose enthusiast could say that he had a complete rose garden unless it contained at least one of the finest of all pink climbers.

NOTICE!

New AARS Roses Available From BOSLEYS In Advance

Each year, usually in June, the new All America Rose winners for the following year are announced and distribution normally starts in January or February of the following year.

We are members of "All America Rose Selections" but due to our strategic location in the North we are able to harvest a crop and ship to our customers in advance of the general distribution of these roses. This means that you can do fall planting.

WAR ON BEETLES WITH NEW WEAPONS

Until recently Rose Growers have been fighting a losing battle against the Japanese Beetle, but thanks to modern day chemistry now the beetles are on the run. Roses have seemed to be a particular target for the vicious feeding Japanese Beetles, but now there is a new chemical that you can use with your other rose sprays and you can see the dead beetles laying on the ground. You no longer have to use the old oil can and the shake-off method. Field tests have shown as many as 400 Beetles off of a big rose bush where this new chemical has been applied throughout the blooming season. It is compatible with most of the spray materials used on the market today.

A $1.99 can should take care of 50 rose bushes throughout the beetle season. Just write to us and order one can of Beetle Die. Use it on anything and everything that the beetles like to feed on. Peach trees, Grapes, Blueberry bushes, Flowering Mountain Ash and many other such ornamental plants are favorite targets of the Japanese Beetle. This spray can be used on any of these plants and you will see hundreds of beetles laying dead underneath those plants, and it is safe for all warm blooded animals. (Do not use on Boston Ivy.)

Never before have we had an effective way of positively killing beetles at the moment. They no longer have an opportunity to breed or to lay eggs. The damage that you see above ground is very dramatic, but the thing that you don't realize is the damage that the grubs do beneath the ground is far more extensive. One of their favorite breeding places is your lawn and when the build-up of the beetles is great, sometimes you can lift the grass just like you would lift off a toupee and find as many as 100 to 200 grubs per square foot, feeding on your grass roots. No wonder your lawn dies out when the beetles are present. For this we have a very effective control that you yourself can apply economically: a control that will protect your lawn for a period of 5 years and more. The cost is just $7.97 for 4000 square feet complete with applicator. Each additional 4000 square feet only $4.48. Just ask for the grub control kit.

For many years the spread of the beetle was very rapid, but now through chemistry we've found effective means of halting their advance and now we believe that we really have them on the run.

Please use the control methods to again enjoy your garden, whether you are a rose gardener or whether you have just a good, good lawn.

NEW SHRUB, GOLDEN WINGS

GOLDEN WINGS is a rare combination of vigor, strength and hardness in a shrub-like plant that can make a 6 ft. specimen with hundreds of blooms or can be pruned to the proportions of a rose bed; also an unusual combination of simplicity, charm and rare beauty. Five daffodil yellow petals enfold a cluster of reddish bronze stamens capped with golden yellow anthers to produce a symphony of color. Make a hedge, use it as a specimen or keep it for cutting. Golden Wings will fascinate and please you.

JUNE BRIDE JUDGED BEST GRANDIFLORA

CONRAD HILTON SUPER

Conrad Hilton is undoubtedly the finest yellow floribunda ever produced. Truly a super Floribunda. It produces quantities of butter yellow buds with red cheeks, opening to full, primrose yellow blooms. Buds are pointed, like miniature Eclipse roses. Disease resistance has been bred into this rose and is the fore-runner of roses to come. We have never seen black-spot on Conrad Hilton. "I once saw a garden heavily infested with black-spot but not a diseased leaf on Conrad Hilton." P.R.B. There is always growth in various stages, producing multitudes of flowers at all times.

The plant is strong, growing waist high, with plenty of healthy canes as big as your thumb breaking from the base. Here in Mentor we have a display of Conrad Hilton roses and this year it received more comment than any rose, with the exception of Tropicana

JUNE BRIDE, a many time winner

Date line Hershey, Penna. JUNE BRIDE was judged top Grandiflora at American Rose Society National Fall Rose Show here in competition among growers from all over the United States. Best Grandiflora! We knew it was good but now everybody in the rose world knows it is good. Many coveted trophies are awarded at these National Shows and as a result the competition is keen and to have a National winner is always an honor.

June Bride (pictured at left) was the first white Grandiflora. From spring until fall it is covered with myriads of white bloom in the form of classic candelabras. As soon as one bloom fades another is coming out to take its place so that the plant always has the appearance of being clothed in a veil of white.

The flowers are beautifully contrasted against a background of dark green healthy foliage. This unique foliage is crinkled and holly-like, adding to the general appearance of the plant. June Bride is a rose for the lazy gardener. Left alone and with poor care it will become waist-high, but if you are a good Rosarian it will grow shoulder height. Either way it will supply you all summer long with armloads of beautiful white blooms fit for the wedding bouquet.

Some of the comments received from the various points in the United States are as follows:

Washington, D. C.: "Outstanding addition to Grandiflora class, good grower and bloomer, foliage excellent." Chicago: "Good white Grandiflora, fragrant, nicely formed buds." Indiana: "Long lasting, sturdy, no disease." Wichita: "Lovely color, lots of bloom." Minneapolis: "Good form and bloom." Nebraska: "Fine plant, likes heat, no blackspot." Albuquerque: "Vigorous growth and constant bloom, lovely for arrangements." Cincinnati: "Very good white Grandiflora." Amarillo, Texas: "Good grower and foliage, excellent high-centered bloom, keeps well." Wyoming: "Absolutely tops, prolific bloomer, vigorous growth."

With all of these testimonials from various parts of the country it is easy to see that June Bride is a most satisfactory rose and is bound to be in short supply for many years to come. Place your orders early to avoid disappointment. $2.50 each; 3 for $6.60.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT & PLANTS TOO

You have undoubtedly heard many times the saying, "As a man eats, so is he." Well, exactly the same thought might be applied to plants.

For instance—the grass plants in your lawn need a diet high in nitrogen, lower in phosphorus and potash. On the other hand, phosphorus helps flowering, potash seems to aid fruit or seed formation, but both of these chemicals work with nitrogen to produce a healthy plant with strong tissues. Your needled evergreens should be given a special EVERGREEN FOOD each spring. Ornamental trees can use fertilizer each spring or after the leaves drop in the autumn. With each purchase of this special plant food we will give one day's free use of a tree feeding auger.

There is also a special fertilizer designed for roses. There are a number of other chemicals needed by plants but most of these are either plentiful in the soil or appear in fertilizers as impurities. The most common deficiency is iron and this is available in a chelated form at our garden shop.

In any case if you will stop out we will give you information based on years of experience and help you with your choice of the really correct plant food for your plants.

Roses, the most popular flowers of all time, maintain a strong lead over any other flower in the plant kingdom, according to the American Association of Nurseriesmen.

These Planting Directions For Roses Will Assist Everyone

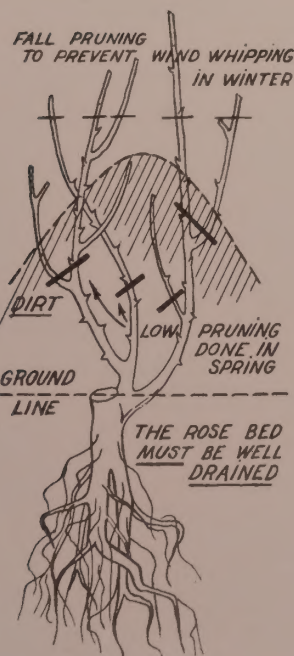

Diagram Showing How To Plant, Hill and Trim Your Roses

Plant your roses immediately upon arrival if possible; otherwise keep the bundle in a cool, dark place out of the wind and wrapped just as it came to you. Do not delay planting.

SELECT A PLACE FOR YOUR ROSE BED THAT HAS GOOD DRAINAGE. THIS IS VERY IMPORTANT. A sunny location is ideal.

If possible, improve the soil in your rose bed by the addition of any one or all three of the following. 1st. Good rose fertilizer should be high in phosphorus and potash and must be thoroughly mixed into the top 15" to 18" of the rose bed. Do not mix this fertilizer into the bed with Spring planting. Use a handful per plant of fertilizer analyzing such as 0-12-12, 0-14-7, 2-12-6, 3-12-12, or a similar formula. 2nd. Any type of soil can be improved by the liberal use of peat moss, or humus. Baled peat must be thoroughly wet before mixing with the soil. 3rd. Cow manure is good to mix with the soil from top to bottom of the bed.

Keep the rose roots in a bucket of water only while planting and never expose the roots to the drying wind and sun. Cut off all broken or bruised branches or roots.

Roses should be planted not more than 15" to 18" apart, in both directions. They like close planting.

DO NOT PLANT THE BUSHES ANY DEEPER THAN SHOWN ON THE ILLUSTRATION. It is important that after the natural settling of the bed, the stump, or knuckle should be uncovered at the ground level.

Spread the roots out and down in a natural position (do not cramp), then work fine dirt around the roots with your hands, tramp hard and water thoroughly to finish.

The new bushes are trimmed and ready to plant as they are shipped to you. No further pruning is necessary now.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER PLANTING, HILL UP THE BUSHES WITH DIRT 8 or 10 INCHES OVER AND THROUGH THE BRANCHES.

This procedure stimulates root action. In spring planting this hill of dirt is removed in two weeks. In your established garden a hill of dirt should be put around each bush late in October or early November as the best possible winter protection.

The older established everblooming roses should be pruned to knee height about December 1st to prevent wind whipping. DO NOT CUT ANYTHING OFF THE CLIMBER OR RAMBLER ROSES AT THIS TIME. Climbers should be trimmed immediately after their spring blooming and then only the dark three-year-old wood removed.

In the spring as soon as the frost leaves the ground (approx. March 15th) remove the protective hill of dirt. Trim your everblooming bushes to about 10" or 12" above the ground and remove the weak shoots to get the finest blooms.

Bosley Nurseries have all the necessary equipment, fertilizers, mulches and sprays in order to help you get the biggest dividend from your rose garden with the minimum amount of effort. Let us introduce you to the new short cuts in lawn maintenance and gardening.

4 PEPPY AMERICAN HOLLY

(Well, almost anywhere)

We used to jokingly say to our customers that Azaleas, Rhododendrons and Holly, could only be grown in God's Country, which meant the acid soil country of the Eastern part of the United States. This is no longer true because we know definitely the requirements of these beautiful plants and we can advise customers, no matter where they live, how to handle these wonderful plants.

If you live in Wisconsin or Minnesota where the winter temperatures get to 30 and 40° below zero, then these plants are not for you, but if you are in a climate no colder than Northern Ohio, you can run the whole gamut of these fantastic plants. You have to have an understanding of what they are and what they require and plant them properly in the first place, and then they are as care-free as any plant that you have in your garden.

Shipping large sizes of Rhododendrons and Azaleas is at the present time very impractical due to the excessively high transportation rates and the excessive cost of boxing and protecting them for traveling, and we cannot and will not ship the larger sizes. However we have developed a whole range of these in container grown plants that ship economically and that will transplant perfectly and that will give you almost immediate results.

These plants can withstand cold but dislike severe whipping by winter winds when they are frozen. Either sun or shade is acceptable but in more than 75% shade they do start to become leggy. As with most plant material they do best where the drainage is good. Sloppy, wet and swampy conditions kill more plants than all other causes combined. As for fertilizers, planting instructions and soil mixes, these points are taken up in the planting instructions sent with each shipment.

These are among the finest landscape plants available and these well started plants will give you a running start on a beautiful landscaping at a very minimum cost. Order a lot of them—you will enjoy them. Incidentally, if you order seven of the Redi-Grown plants in any combination, the eighth one (of your own choice, except Blue Spruce) is free. Order fourteen and 2 are free and so forth. This is a nice bonus for you and we urge you to take advantage of it.

THE IMPORTANCE OF KNOWING WHAT YOU ARE DOING

In Southern Michigan there are a series of signs proclaiming—"If you don't know your furs, know your furrier." I have always thought that this could also read—"If you don't know your plants know your nurseryman."

Other than fine quality plants probably the most important thing Bosleys have to offer is professional advice and it is freely given. We find that, although many customers come in knowing what they want to buy, about 90% need advice on how or where to plant, when to spray, what to spray with, when and how to fertilize, when and how to prune and many other things. We feel that the prime ingredient of a sale is making sure the customer has success with his plant.

The same thing goes for modern garden chemicals. A most horrible recent example was the case of a nice lady with a refined English accent who came in to obtain advice on replacing most of the plants in her home landscaping. When I got to the bottom of the story I found that she had purchased soluble plant food, weed killer and insecticide and a hose and sprayer at a hardware store. Now I have nothing against these products, they are all good useful chemicals when used as intended, but they told her to mix them all together and spray all of the shrubs and lawn.

It is easy to see that this did a thorough job of killing everything she had. The hardware store was interested in a sale and they made one, but it was their last sale to this woman. By the time she came to us it was too late to save her plants but she is starting all over again with correct advice from us and this will never happen again.

You say - "This could never happen to me," but think again. If you buy at a hardware, discount or grocery store and accept their advice in any way on plants or garden chemicals, or if you listen to what your neighbor or friend with the so-called "Green Thumb" tells you, it could happen to you.

I say again, other than fine quality plants, probably the most important thing Bosleys have to offer is professional advice and it is freely given. Come on out and let us help you. Don't write and don't call. You don't phone your doctor when you have a broken bone because he can't help you that way, and neither can we. Bring a twig of the affected plant, or a piece of the weed to be killed, or the bug to be eradicated, or the grass to be identified and that way we can help you.

If you bring a picture of your house and grounds we can help you to plan a correct and beautiful landscape plan for it. We plan it, you plant it, all with our advice.

We will be glad to keep you on our list to receive copies of Rose News if you let us know. If you order you will automatically be kept on our list. The Bosley Nursery has been located in Mentor, Ohio, since 1929.
